THURSDAY MORNING, JULY 6, 1865

The Glorious Celebration.

The Fourth was celebrated here last Tuesday in a style and manner worthy any city of our size in the East or in the West. It was a great, a grand, a joyous gala day in Salt Lake City and Camp Douglas. The custom of commemorating the Nation's birth came to us with a new significance, at this special time—with a country tried and proved. It was, as well, a celebration worthy of the great cause of Union and Independence—worthy of our redemption from threatened national destruction. It was worthy the principles which its founders fought to popularize, and worthy of the Peace which our brave troops triumphantly have won. It is thus cherishing the remembrances of patriotism, that our people will learn to love nationality, obey the laws, and foster freedom of speech and action in these mountain cañons.

What did we commemorate? Not brave, contested battles, big with interest to a monarch's throne. Not starting heroism to hold subjects still in slavery, while crowning some great petty tyrant with Freedom. No. We commemorated the great truth which philosophy and religion have been teaching for nearly nineteen centuries—the immortal Declaration of the equality and the rights of man, which has made us a great nation, multiplied our thirteen struggling colonies into thirty-five great States, with Territories rich in precious metals and in patriotism as well—that Union, which has enlarged our empire, and enriched our wide domain—that Flag, which has clustered to its azure field the emblems of nearly two score of sovereignties in one—the glory of every loyal heart.

THE FOURTH IN TOWN.

At sunrise a salute of thirteen guns was fired; after which, the "Stars and Stripes" were hoisted high over many a public and private building through the city. Presently the sound of martial music brought the people on the streets so that after breakfast tens of thousands were on the go, and going for the grounds of rendezvous.

THE PROCESSION.

Through the principal streets was a pageant of immensity in numbers and appearance. It was about a mile and a half in length, and took from thirty to forty minutes to pass a certain point. The flags and banners streaming from the heads and centres of the several columns; the coaches, carriages and wagons adorned with designs and replete with the Stars and Stripes; the lively music from the bands; the throngs of spectators on foot, on horseback and in carriages at every crossing of the streets; the insignia and workshops of mechanics and artisans, blacksmiths, carpenters, painters, artists, gunsmiths, tinners, photographers, etc., etc., added an air of interest and reality to the mass of moving humanity. The telegraph force with their veritable "machines," the Overland Mail Coach, with appropriate emblems, flags and evergreen, the Overland Stage Coach with its corresponding display of mottoes, flags, etc., the mammoth "Monitor" on wheels, with the graceful "God-dess of Liberty" (Miss Hunter) standing in the Temple's dome; the sons of Vulcan with their forge; the butchers with their meat carts; the horticulturists with their mammoth bouquets, flower wreaths, cornucopias filled with luscious fruits; the thirteen young men, representing the original colonies; the thirty-five young ladies, representing the States; the nine young ladies, representing the Territories; the three or four hundred young ladies of the Musical and Dramatic Associations; the Masters and Misses of the several schools; the citizens on foot, on horseback and in vehicles, all combined to make the grand procession an imposing, grand success.

Just think of it, ye distant readers, of two hundred young ladies of seemingly the same size and years—about the interesting age of eighteen—in double file—followed by squads of sixties or hundreds, of different (but also uniform) age and dress. If we were asked the question after this, "What's the chief product of Utah?" they would unhesitatingly answer "Girls!" They, too, several companies of young ladies and Misses were dressed in the sweetest accents of good taste—white, with blue sashes, charming toilets, white flower wreaths, white kids, rosettes, parasols, etc., perfectly aggravating, en masse, to the mass of masculine spectators. At the seminary exhibitions in the cities of the east, the girls couldn't get themselves up in better shape than those appeared on this occasion.

AT THE BOWERY.

There must have been ten thousand in and about the new temple or tabernacle square, and in the "Bowery," to hear the speeches, songs and other exercises. Judge J. F. Kinney read the Declaration. The oration was delivered by Geo. Q. Cannon, a dignitary of the Church. Hon. J. M. Ashley, being present, made a short speech, appropriate to the occasion. Toasts were offered; and after music and prayer the exercises closed, while a National salute was afterwards fired by a detachment of artillery.

AT CAMP DOUGLAS.

At twelve a National salute was fired. As one grand parade was had, attended and admired by a number of spectators and visitors from the city. Presently carriages from the city, and visitors on horseback commenced to arrive, and were hospitably taken hold of by the good denizens of Camp. Hon. J. M. Ashley and party, together with Mayor Smoot and distinguished members of the city's civil and official representatives arrived. The Camp Theater was crowded with citizens and military, fair ladies and brave men of camp and city, to hear the very eloquent oration of Rev. N. McLeod, portions only of which we are able to give our readers, consistent with the variety demanded by the columns of a daily paper. But in this giving here and there a portion of the learned speaker's speech, we have aimed at abridging it so as to have the reader enjoy as near as possible an idea of the complete whole, in spirit and in structure. This was the next practicable thing that we could do, as the oration entire would fill five columns. The Declaration of Independence was read by Capt. Stillman, who did so, in a creditable way, preluding the same with these remarks: "There has perhaps been no period in our national existence, since the day that gave birth to this illustrious document that has furnished so fitting occasion for it as the present. It is, as it were, the meeting and greeting of 1776 with 1865. We have the proud privilege of living to enjoy the benefit and realize the predictions of that glorious and gallant band from which it emanated." Chief Justice Titus officiated as President of the interesting occasion. Hon. J. M. Ashley favored the large audience with a speech, the band made music, and the meeting adjourned to re-assemble at the several hospitable tables, as per description in another column.

The Fourth of July was a grand, gala day in Great Salt Lake City, long to be remembered with pleasure and with pride. A magnificent house at the city Theater and a pleasant party at the Library Rooms closed the celebration.

The following is portions of the ORATION delivered at Camp Douglas by the Chaplain, Rev. N. McLeod.

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Fellow Citizens:—This is a glad day, the most glorious Fourth that ever dawned upon the Republic, richer in the elements of progress, fairer in promise for the future, pointing its splendors over the mountain tops of the land we call our country, flooding with light and hope the valleys of conflict and of death, enkindling ten thousand fires of glad anticipation and deathless promise for the oppressed and downtrodden millions of Europe and the world, proclaiming that liberty, in its last battle on American soil, is victorious, and the wrongs and oppressions of ages avenged.

Yes! this is a thrice glorious day. Where is the patriot whose heart does not beat high with hope, to-day, for his country, and for the triumph of the principles for which we have made so many, and such costly sacrifices. While paying the tribute of tender sorrow to the fallen brave, the martyrs of liberty, that, at Donelson, at Shiloh, at Chancellorsville, at Petersburg, and everywhere on America's hundred battle fields, slumber beneath the soil redeemed by their blood; and while recognizing, with lofty pride, the great deeds of the illustrious heroes who still live to receive the crowns of the nation's gratitude, to be welcomed home as the deliverers, and everywhere garlanded as victors; let us rejoice, with a calm and chastened joy, the indications of stable peace, and in the outgivings we are already permitted to behold of the exceeding glory of the coming destiny of the Republic.

To-day, the storm of battle is stilled, the warring elements calmed the conflict that for four years raged and deepened, reading a continent and spreading dismay through the heart of a world, is ended; the cloud that closed dense and awful over the Republic, draping it with mourning, clothing it in the balldiments of woe, pressing direful disasters, the utter chaos of Republican institutions, a sepulcher for our fondest hopes, over which no resurrection morn would ever dawn, is rolled away by the hand of the Eternal God. The sun of justice, progress, and liberty, is bursting through the terrible gloom, shining more resplendent than if it had never been veiled, by the storm of disaster, and obscured by the night of perils.

Contemplating our present position and the inevitable future that awaits us, have we not cause for gratitude and hope. The storm that swept the bosom of the Republic, threatening to engulf our fondest hopes, has but purified the atmosphere, imparting to it new elements of national life; what seemed to be the forces of destruction have, by the divine touch of liberty, been transmuted into the powers of greatness and of exceeding grandeur to the Republic; it is only the dawn of liberty, yet our priceless interests and those of coming generations, stand more secure to-day than ever.

Even while we are bending in sorrow over the graves of our fallen heroes, never had we such cause to hope for the Republic and for the interests of humanity, committed to her sacred guardianship, and to be shielded as her life all the boasted titles in the heraldry of despotism; and with the old story flag, waving in proud and undisputed supremacy over the broad inheritance, every star gleaming in new and awful splendor, even though draped in mourning for the great fallen patriot, the immortal Lincoln, how hopeful the prospects now dawning upon the Republic!

In the enlightened convictions, in the chastened affections, and in the deathless purpose, of the people; how strong, and imperishable, even to-day the pillars that support the temple of our liberty; what power, less, than the Almighty's will be able to shatter, or overthrow them; in every endowed heart, in every orphaned heart, in every bereaved home, where the stars of sorrow flow, for the unreturning brave; we have now new fortresses of defence, for the Republic; in the very anguish of her numerous mourners, I see the elements of her grandest hope; the invincible reserves, marshaled by adversity, to bear her draped banner, to ultimate victory. As never before, in the most prosperous days of the Republic, we have God! and all the forces of God, on our side, and if God be for us, who can be against us.

But to appreciate the grandeur and strength of our position, as after four years of terrible war, we stand victorious, chastened, but enabled; to be able to take in something of the glory of our country, when the seed principles, sown in blood, in her battle furrowed fields, watered with the blood of her magnanimous sacrifices, and with the fruitifying dew of her mighty sorrows, shall ripen into a harvest, on the plains of America.

Let us briefly review the past; retracing the path of toil, peril, and sacrifice, by which we have reached the proud eminence of progress; the lofty mount of vision, from which to-day, though saddened, we gaze exulting.

In thought then I go back to the period of the great uprising; when by nameless terrors and insults, and at last, by the crowning act of treason, the first upon the old flag at Sumter, a mighty people were roused, to precipitate themselves in masses of valor, on the living foe, and to achieve the stupendous purposes of liberty or to perish in the attempt; and how grand and soul-stirring, yet saddening, and appalling, the scenes I everywhere witness, on the broad arena of my country; what war preparations, what a gliding up of man, hood, for the dread strife.

I see the thousands of my countrymen, leaving their peaceful avocations, abandoning the farm, the shop, the desk, the study, the marts of trade, and the halls of learning; tearing themselves away from home, and from all earth's loved and endearing scenes; crowding in eager hands, in vast multitudes to the contest of organization, to the camp, and to the field; calm with the deliberations of valor, but glorious, with the purposes of freedom; at the call of patriotism, pressing out to war's fiery front, welcoming death itself, for the honor of the Republic.

I see the glorious matrons of America, inspired with the loftiest sentiments of Patriotism; rising to the grandeur of the occasion, laying their "lives" on the Altar of their Country, giving up the glorious youth of America, for the life of the Republic.

I see the virgin daughters of America, pale with the agony of the suspense, with the anguish of the separation, as their lovers go forth to meet death, on the battle fields of the Union, to secure to humanity its rights, and to freedom its domain.

I see the wife, clinging to the manly form of him whom she will perhaps never more behold, yet by her brave words, and her noble sentiments, nerve him to manhood's high resolves, inspiring him with undimmed stern purposes, to die if needs be, in the right, to follow the old starry flag as it flashes its splendors on the foe, even though life to her should be made a blank, and the grave should separate them.

I see the young darlings, too, gathered around, sobbing out their tender farewells, giving up their father to their country, becoming orphans, that the Republic may live.

With such interests as the Republic had at stake, with such reserves as she had on her side, with God and Liberty burning in the van of the battle, all the powers of earth combined, could not deter her starry flag, impede her sublime advance, or rob her of the victory; principles, sentiments, ideas, these are the powers mightier than armies; at last, the consciousness of having God, Right and Justice, on our side, gave power an invincibility to our armies. Yes, God Almighty moved with our banner, and at last covered it with imperishable glory. The decree has gone forth, I hear it thundering in the heavens, pealing over earth's islands and continents, "From henceforth, America shall be one and undivided," the sunnier Union shall be re-unioned on a new and stable basis, the separated States shall now be married again, and for Eternity.

From the soil, fertilized by the blood of so many and such costly sacrifices, blessings shall yet spring to all people. Liberty shall now be the law of the land, and we call our country; truth, justice, and equity shall be everywhere prevalent; and the principles and the systems that are opposed to these, forming across the line of their advance, must, and will, go down forever. The nation has at last been educated into faith in principle and confidence in truth, after this we will have less of policy, and more of righteousness in our laws and in all the acts of Government. The word, expediency, when divorced from right principle, will be abandoned and loathed, as a word of peril and of shame. It has been made the shelter of many wrongs, the garb of seeming purity, covering the heart of corruption; the mantle of pretended wisdom, concealing the madness of folly; Right will henceforth take the place of expediency. Oh my country! what hast thou not sacrificed for the precious boon of Liberty, Justice and Union. thy pillar strength for all coming ages? let us live to give immortality to their memory, to enrich and to embellish, by our virtues, the Republic they have died to redeem; and forever more let the memory of Washington and Lincoln, the Father and Savior of their Country, live in the hearts of their countrymen and of the lovers of liberty and humanity everywhere throughout the world.

OVER eight thousand steam engines are employed in boring for and pumping oil in the State of Pennsylvania.

RECEIPT OF BELLION.—The San Francisco Stock Circular for the week ending June 24th, says the receipts of treasure from the interior mining districts, for the week previous, amounted to $1,200,000 making an aggregate of $4,000,000 during the current month. Gold bars are selling at $25 to $30, and silver at from par to 2 per cent. discount.

The play of Uncle Tom's Cabin at the splendid success. The beautiful new the vision of the future, the emancipathe days when we used to saunter at Delmonico's. It would indeed be cruel to make any invidious distinction where all the tables were so bountifully laid, but we cannot omit especial mention of a few.

At Mrs. Capt. Stillman's, we saw some beautiful salads, hams, and sandwiches intermingled with cakes, buns and what-nots. While on a side table we observed a mammoth bowl and cosy glasses, which at once brought vividly to mind, our punch days; they are o'er now though. Leaving Mrs. Stillman's, we called on Mrs. Capt. Dalton. Ye Gods! said we. Do chickens and turkeys light on your tables decked in such palatable plumage? "Patriotic Cacklers" indeed.
The towels, little loves of biscuits, and pretty cakes made us exclaim (although we were full to repletion) give me some more. After exchanging the pleasant morning salutation, with that agreeable and accomplished lady, Mrs. Dalton, we said au revoir and left, with the full self conviction that we had our fill; but no, we could not pass Mrs. Lt. Firman.
After having been greeted at this estimated lady's door with a galaxy of beauty, for which we were wholly unprepared, as our undress uniform fully attested, we were ushered into the dining room, by Capt. Dalton, where our eyes were made to dazzle, and our heads to swim, in our mind wandering to fairly land, where epicureans do mostly delight to congregate. The delicacies of the season were profusely and with pointed taste, laid upon Mrs. Firman's tables, while the belles rang merrily in the parlor.

We are informed that Mrs. Doct. Reid and Mrs. Nevitt entertained their friends in that hospitable manner which makes every one happy and social around them, but our business, and already more than enough for our eyes to feast upon for one day, would not permit us to visit them.

Lieut. Miller's doors were thrown hospitably open to his numerous friends, in fact it would be unjust to know "Harry" and not know that he is the prince of good fellows. Capt. Lewis, A. A. G., also showed his hand at a "lay out," which proved to be a "full" L.

GEORGE PAUNCEFORT, the actor, made a big sensation among the San Fran-ciscoans, on the occasion of his debut at the Magnifico's Opera House, the other night.
The Call says his "Henry Jasper," in the English comedy of A Bachelor of Arts, was received with highest approbation. Mr. Pauncefort was called out after the first act, and at the conclusion of the piece; made a neat speech and received the plaudits of the "large and fashionable audience."

A GRAND FREEZE OUT.—A Professor Minns has said that by cutting a canal across the Isthmus of Panama, the Gulf Stream would be made to change its course, and as England is made fruitful and temperate by the warm waters of the tropics carried along her shores by this stream, with it changed she would be left in the cold and would soon become as barren and desolate as Iceland.
The Professor thinks the United States, by cutting such a canal, might revenge itself of England for the damage done by the Alabama. Ingenious chap that professor!

(From the Chicago Evening Journal.)
The Division in the Mormon Church.

A letter from Joseph Smith, leader of the Mormon opposition to Brigham Young, defining his creed, etc.

PAUNCEFORT, (Ill.) May 22, 1865.
Seeing in your issue of the 19th inst., among the "Gleanings," an item referring to "Trouble among Mormons," and being one of the individuals referred to in that article of news, I thought a line from me, concerning the difference existing as to points of doctrine between Brigham Young and myself, might not be uninteresting to your readers.

I am aware of the impracticability of making the news journals of the day the vehicle of quarrels between churchmen, or religious monomaniacs; but as those journals give shape, in a great measure, to the opinion of the public, I am in hopes that a few lines may not be considered amiss in this behalf.

Philanthropists and reformers have never occupied an enviable position at the outset of their career, in the estimation of mankind, however truthful time may have proved their theories to be.
Thus, in the item to which I refer, I am placed before the public as an antagonist to Brigham Young, in a contest for the possible emoluments of a ruler. This is indirectly true; but it is this were the only ambition that stirred me to effort (premiting that success was attainable under the auspices by which the tenure of his office is held,) then you, and all others within the influence of a healthier state of moral ethics, might with propriety, declare the ambition to be a base one.

Regarding as an item of news only, giving notice that a new sect has come into existence, it is five years too late, for, during the last five years, while the nation has been struggling with the Southern rebellion, I, with many others, have been engaged in an endeavor to arrest the progress of Utah Mormonism.
It might be inferred by some, that I am in the Territory of Utah, waging this dispute with Brigham, while the truth is, I have never been west of Omaha, Nebraska, and have never seen the Mecca of modern polygamist believers.

I am not alone in this contest, for rising of ten thousand earnest minded men and women are united at the present time in a faith as fatal to the creed of Brigham Young and fellow believers, as was the command: "upon shalt have no other God before me;" to the idolatrous worshippers of the day in which the words were uttered.

We are scattered from the shores of Maine, to the thriving cities on the west shore of California, on this land and over the sea, whence have come the many thousands of those who have gone to Utah, we are earnestly striving to make head against the perverters of Christ.

Let this letter should become too intrusive, I will briefly state some points of difference between our faith and doctrines and that of Brigham Young.

We worship God, and not Adam.
We believe this to be a gathering dispensation, but do not believe in gathering to the Salt Land.

We believe that loyalty is becoming the christian; and do not believe that rebellion and sedition are justifiable in any people whose rights are guaranteed to them by a beneficent government.

I now quote from a book published in 1845, one year after my father was killed, and since republished by us in 1864. It is a book called the Doctrines and Covenants of the Church, and is to us in the place of a book of discipline. In an article on marriage, it declared:

"We believe that one man should have but one wife; and one woman but one husband, except in case of death, when either is at liberty to marry again." This was published by the church during the regime of laws under which it was existing at my father's death, which took place in June, 1845, and the difference between myself and Brigham, is easily measured, when I affirm the foregoing quotation as being my belief on that point.

In the Book of Mormon, which has been so commonly known as the Mormon Bible, and which is by all so-called "mormons" received as good authority in mooted questions, there occurs the following emphatic language: "Behold, David and Solomon truly had many wives and concubines, which thing was abominable before me, saith the Lord," wherefore, my brethren, hear me, and hearken to the word of the Lord, for there shall not any man among you have save it be one wife; and concubines he shall have none."

We, therefore, believe that it is lawful in the sight of God and man to have one wife, and do not believe it to be lawful for any man to have a plurality of wives.
We believe that murder, arson, theft, and, in fact, all the crimes known to the code, are criminal in any one, and do not believe that God commands men to disregard the rights of his fellow-men in any particular.

We believe there is one body and one spirit, even as men are called in one hope of their calling. One Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is above all, through all, and in all.
We believe that men will be punished for their own sines, and not for Adam's transgressions. We believe that God is no respector of persons; but that whoever feareth Him, and worketh righteousness, in every nation, is accepted of him.

I have the pleasure of signing myself, yours, most respectfully, JOSEPH SMITH.

United States 7.30 LOAN. Third Series. $230,000,000.

By authority of the Secretary of the Treasury, the undersigned, the General subscription Agent, of the sale of United States securities, offers to the public the third series of Treasury Notes, bearing seven and three-tenths per cent. interest per annum, known as the ### 7.30 LOAN.

These notes are issued under date of July 15, 1865, and are payable three years from that date in currency, or are convertible at the option of the holder into

U. S. 5-20 Six per Cent.

Gold bearing Bonds.

The Bonds are now worth a handsome premium, and are exempt, as are all the Government Bonds, from County, and Municipal taxation, which adds from one to three per cent. per annum to their value, according to the rate levied upon other property. The interest is payable semi-annually by coupons attached to each note, which may be cut off and sold to any bank or banker.

The interest at 7.30 per cent, amounts to

One cent per day on a $50 note.
Two cents per day on a $100 note.
Ten cents " " " $500 " Twenty cents " " " $1,000 " One Dollar " " " $5,000 "

Notes of all the denominations named will be promptly furnished upon receipt of subscriptions.

The notes of this Third Series are precisely similar in form and privileges to the Seven Thirties already sold, except that the Government reserves to itself the option of paying interest in gold coin at 6 per cent, instead of 7.30 in currency. Subscribers will deduct the interest in currency from July 15th, at the time when the subscribe.

The delivery of the notes of this third series of the seven thirties will commence on the first of June, and will be made promptly and continuously after that date.

The slight change made in the conditions of this THIRD SERIES affects only the matter of interest. The payment in gold, if made, will be equivalent to the currency interest of the higher rate.

The return to specie payments, in the event of which only will the option to pay interest in Gold be availed of, would reduce and equalize prices that purchases made with six per cent, in gold would be fully equal to those made with seven and three-tenths per cent, in currency.
This is

The only Loan in the MARKET.

Now offered by the Government, and its superior advantages make it the ### Great popular Loan of the People.

Less than $200,000,000 of the Loan authorized by Congress are now on the market. This amount, at the rate at which it being absorbed, will all be subscribed for within sixty days, when the notes will undoubtedly command a premium, as has uniformly been the case on closing the subscriptions to other Loans.

In order that citizens of every town and section of country may be offered facilities for taking the Loan, the National Banks, State Banks, and Private Banks throughout the country have generally agreed to receive subscriptions at par. Subscribers will select their own agents, in whom they have confidence, and who only are to be responsible for the delivery of the notes for which the receipt is given.

National Anthem.

Air—Old Hundred.
BY WILLIAM ROSS WALLACE.

God of the Free! upon Thy breath Our flag is still for right unfurled.
As broad and brave as when its stars First lit the darkness of the world.

For duty still its fold shall stream, For honor all its glories burn.
Where truth, religion, valor, guard The patriot's sword and martyr's urn.

Though demons struck our ruler down; Though wrapt in woe, the nation still Shall march in its benignant path With steadfast hope, unswerving will.

No tyrant's impious step is ours, No lust of power on nations rolled—Our flag, for friends a starry sky, For foes a storm in every fold.

No slavery shall blot our clime, But evermore on wave and sod, Only one master's shadow fall—
The golden shadow cast by God.

Ours will keep the nation's life, Nor fear the bolt by despot hurled;
The blood of all the world is here,
And they who strike us strike the world!

God of the right! the ruler bless Who guides our mourning nation now; Purify the rainbow in his brow, But storms of justice on his brow.

Thine, still, rear high the oak, O North!
O South, wave answer with thy palm!
All in our Union's heritage Together sing the nation's psalm!

MERCANTILE politicians and straws show which way the wind blows.

MANY minds that are not far reaching are over-reaching.

HYPOCRITES wear long faces, just as if they supposed that God were an undertaker.

EVERY plain girl has one consolation.
If she is not a pretty young lady, she will, if she lives, be a pretty old one.

A MAN might often earn enough money in the time he wastes in vainly lamenting the want of it.

NATURE never fills our hearts with more of her beauty than when we are recovering from sickness. Like a mother, as she is, she then leans over us, lovingly and smiles her sweetest smiles, and kisses us into beautiful dreams.

California Troops in Nevada.

FORT CHURCHILL, June 20.— Thinking that some of your readers might wish to learn of the doings of the California Battalion which has recently come among you, it occurred to me that perhaps a short sketch of our march over the mountains and the subsequent disposition of the troops might not be uninteresting to many.

The battalion consists of two companies of the Sixth Infantry, California Volunteers—Company I, under Captain A. Hahn, and Company D, under Captain J. H. Hill, and all under the immediate command of Major M. O'Brien, a thorough soldier and perfect gentleman, who looks out for the interest of his men and is extremely popular.

The command left Benicia Barracks on the evening of the 3d and arrived here on the 14th, making the trip in eleven days. We came from Benicia to Sacramento by railroad. The first day thereafter we marched eighteen miles, and the following days from eight to twenty-two miles, the men, as a general thing, standing the trip exceedingly well. Upon our arrival here we found but twenty-five or thirty men in garrison. After a rest of three days, orders were received for Company D together with Company B of the Second California Cavalry to proceed to Surprise Valley. They left on the 19th, and, if they should succeed in finding the redskins, you may expect to hear a good account from the California boys.

Now, that there is a sufficient force among the Indians to conquer an effectual peace, I say let it be done, and forever remove the prevailing fear of the treacherous aborigines; for, were it not for their depredations at times, your beautiful State would ere long be extensively populated, and a multiplicity of smiling towns dot the valleys that now remain in their primitive loveliness and pristine beauty. An extensive tract of country would be opened to the hardy prospector, and as time progressed you would be called upon to chronicle "huge strikes," "big yields," and "immense dividends." The fact is patent to every intelligent mind that the mineral resources of this State are as yet undeveloped. It is the opinion of many with whom I have conversed that when the Indians are effectually subdued, this State will march on to wealth and greatness with gigantic strides. Not in the annals of civilization can an instance be found of a country improving as this State has within the last four years. But this is a progressive age, and, verily, the American people are a fast one.
